

Environmental Protection Officer

Closing Date: Open until suitable candidate found

Location: Fort McMurray

Role

Perhaps you have just finished school and are looking to learn the ropes to kick-start your career in Environmental Protection or Compliance. Maybe you already have an environmental science background or some regulatory inspection experience but are looking for an adventure and a place to grow. This might be the opportunity for you!

Come join our team. We are currently hiring Environmental Protection Officers (EPOs) for our northern Alberta locations of Fort McMurray.

Working as part of the Compliance Team, you will:

- Apply the principles of Education, Prevention and Enforcement as identified in the Government of Alberta's compliance assurance management framework to achieve legislative compliance.
- Conduct proactive and reactive inspections to assess regulatory compliance in regulated sectors such as drinking water, contaminated sites, industrial, agricultural, and municipal sectors.
- Respond to environmental incidents, including public complaints, collect evidence to determine if a contravention has occurred and report findings to the Compliance Assurance Lead.

You may also be required to act as an Emergency Regional Responder serving on an on-call rotational basis expected to receive, prioritize and respond to environmental emergencies.

In the north, you'll enjoy independence, adventure, and the challenge of managing a vast natural resource. You will see the value your work provides to our environment. In the north, you'll find a prosperous and sustainable future for you and your family for years to come.

The abundance of natural areas and resources required dedicated professionals working together as a team to ensure their protection, preservation, and responsible use.

Come and be a part of that team... Opportunity awaits.
